I've got that problem for a couple of months. :S and couldn't solve it. A: The problem is that the variable $url contains a special symbol @ in the replacement pattern. In the case of the string test, it gets expanded to the string @test. If you use the following code: $url = "test"; $str = "text text text $url"; $str = preg_replace('/^\$w+/', '... This issue was reported by php.net and they recommend to replace $url with $_GET["url"] and not directly with @url. So if you replace $url with $_GET["url"], the code will work. Insight into the potent anti-inflammatory and analgesic effects of a novel anti-oxidant - ZINC020791. We evaluated the effects of ZINC020791 in a model of acute carrageenan-induced oedema and in a model of hyperalgesia induced by carrageenan in rats. Furthermore, we characterized the role of oxidative stress in the mechanisms of action of this compound on the basis of cytokine levels (IL-1 β and TNF- α), and antioxidant parameters (superoxide dismutase, catalase, and glutathione peroxidase) in the plasma and erythrocytes. Intraperitoneal injection of carrageenan (250 μ g/kg body weight) induced a significant oedema. This effect was inhibited by pre-administration of ZINC020791 (2mg/kg body weight, administered 2h before carrageenan). The drug also prevented the hyperalgesia induced by the same dose of carrageenan. The systemic administration of ZINC020791 was well tolerated, as judged by the absence of lethality and motor dysfunction, suggesting the absence of neurotoxicity. However, it was able to potentiate the effects of diazepam, and thus counteract the sedative effects produced by the drug. Analysis of oxidative stress parameters showed a decrease in the levels of
