Adobe Photoshop 2020 (version 21)

Q: Openshift/Kubernetes Certificate Signing Request I'm new to Kubernetes (or rather OpenShift), so this is probably a super basic question. I'm following the OSS-native Certificate provisioning guide (I'm not keen on setting up a private key, rekeying certificates every time I redeploy a service, etc). I've generated a CSR and I've packaged it into a JAR. Do I need to do anything to make this JAR available to the cluster (i.e. upload it somewhere or do I just run pk12util in the same directory the generated CSR is in?) Do I need to wait for some certificate authority to accept the CSR and issue a certificate? A: No need to upload anything, just pk12util -p jason -i /my/csr.pk12 -o /my/certificate.pem will generate the certificate. Make sure the private key is kept secret! { stdenv, fetchpatch, fetchFromGitHub, fetchgit, makeWrapper, python3, qmake, qttools, bluedevil, bluedevil-plugins, bluez-utils, libnotify, xdg-utils }: let git = fetchgit { name = "x11-apps"; repo = "git://github.com/eridius/x11-apps.git"; rev = "b745119f924a2b7940e01fcb6a4e5f4e55a5b2f6"; url = ""; }; patch = stdenv.lib.concatStringsSep " " stdenv.lib.optionalString versionsToPatch; in stdenv.mkDerivation rec { version = "1.3.0"; pname = "xfce4-whiskermenu"; src = fetchgit { name = "xfce4-whiskermenu"; url = "

What's New In?

The invention relates to a friction-roll bearing which is lubricated in the axial direction by a lubricant delivered from a lubricant pump to a surface of the friction-roll bearing which is to be lubricated. In the prior art, friction-roll bearings are used in several types of constructions. One such friction-roll bearing is shown in FIG. 6. This known friction-roll bearing has an inner ring 1, an outer ring 3 and a plurality of rollers 4. The inner ring 1 and the outer ring 3 are provided with axial grooves 5a and 5b, respectively. The rollers 4 are guided in these grooves and rotatably supported by the rings 1 and 3. The axial grooves 5a and 5b are filled with a mixture of oil and a solid lubricant such as a solid or wet graphite. The solid lubricant has a certain size and is distributed throughout the filled-in mixture. In order to prevent a buildup of air bubbles in the axial grooves 5a and 5b due to centrifugal force, an airtight casing 6 is fitted around the outer ring 3. The casing 6 is formed by two spaced-apart inner walls 6a and 6b and a bottom 6c. The outer wall 6b and the bottom 6c of the casing 6 are open at both axial ends of the bearing. Openings 7 and 8 are provided at the ends of the casing 6 at the upper ends of the axial grooves 5a and 5b, respectively. The space in which the ring 3 is fitted is filled with a powdered lubricant. The inner wall 6a of the casing 6 is provided with a tubular fitting 9 which is connected to the oil supply system of the bearing. At least one, but usually two, suction ports 10 are provided in the bottom 6c of the casing 6. Suction is applied to these suction ports 10, so that oil from the oil supply system is drawn into the axial grooves 5a and 5b. This oil, together with the powdered lubricant, is supplied to the surface of the rollers 4 which is to be lubricated. The purpose of the airtight casing 6 is to prevent the suction ports 10 from becoming clogged up with dirt, which would then no longer be drawn into the axial grooves 5a and 5b. In addition to the airtight casing 6, there is an annular packing 11 which seals off the upper edges
