device for surveillance of persons using a specific access route in a particular building or area, and, more particularly, it relates to a device for detecting the presence of persons having the status of a suspect in a building or enclosure. 2.

Description of the Prior Art A variety of different systems have been developed for surveillance purposes. Such systems may include devices to detect the presence of suspicious persons in areas such as banks, stores, schools, hospitals, and the like. Other devices are in the nature of panic buttons which are activated and deactivated by members of a building or facility to alert authorities of suspicious or criminal activity. In a number of cases, it has been found desirable to cause a light or other visual indication to be displayed in response to the detection of the presence of a person in an area. This permits the situation to be readily observed and any subsequent investigative steps taken by authorities to apprehend the perpetrator of such activity. Sauerkraut Depending on the brand, kraut can cost anywhere from $1.99-$5.99 a bottle! Sauerkraut has become somewhat of a fashion item for the Paleo crowd, mainly due to its ability to be used in any dish that calls for pickles. People who have converted to Paleo tend to eat kraut raw as a condiment with meats or stir-fries. Sauerkraut is also a great item to throw in the crock pot for a few hours, then set the pot at the side of the stove and leave your house for an hour to 2 hours, allowing the kraut to fully sour and ferment. My favorite brand of sauerkraut is called Monkey Bay. They have a variety of flavors to choose from. However, they are overpriced at about $5.99 per bottle. I wanted something a little less expensive, but still decent tasting. Enter the next brand of sauerkraut I decided to give a try: Primal Palate.

These sausages are a bit expensive (usually around $12.99 per 4oz.) but I figured it is a great way to sample different brands of sauerkraut, so I ordered a 4oz. bottle and paid $9

Downloaded the Steam key for BattleBeasts for free (on the developers website, not a scammy site with no address, all correct) and played it this weekend, even though it's. So thank you so.
