“An exciting new gameplay feature is the new ‘HyperMotion Technology’, the only technology on the market that captures every on-ball movement, tackles and aerial duels made by human players to power unique on-pitch movements that recreate the athleticism of a live football match,” said Oli Shotton, FIFA 22 Executive Producer. “We have tested the data from over 100,000 match events and developed more than 500 animations based on every action recorded in real-life that we believe will truly capture the intricacies of football.” “With HyperMotion Technology, the match continues to evolve on the pitch with features inspired by real-life gameplay such as the ability to perform intense dribbles and triangulations on a variety of surfaces. The key aim of ‘HyperMotion Technology’ is to give players the ability to truly experience football in FIFA games for the first time,” said Karl-Johan Ludvigsen, Head of Pro. “With Real Player Motion Technology, FIFA has made the leap into capturing real-life movements and player acceleration. HyperMotion technology gives the game a new level of intelligence and sophistication, as it allows us to share the results of our real-world data and real-life motions through the game engine.” FIFA 22 introduces “Real Player Motion Technology,” which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits. The data collected from player movements, tackles, aerial duels and on-ball actions is used to power FIFA 22 gameplay. With Real Player Motion Technology, players perform all of their actions in game like they do in real life. The key aim of this technology is to give players the ability to perform natural, real-life movements and accelerate. Developer Phenomic worked closely with FIFA's data scientists to capture the movements of over 100,000 match events recorded from 22 different players and combine it with real-world physics. Players were filmed in motion capture suits that record every on-ball movement on the pitch in real-time. These data were then used to develop more than 500 animations that have been added to the game engine. These new animations enable players to perform at the intensity players are used to, and from a variety of positions and conditions including the ability to perform dribbles and triangulations on the wide open pitch, banks and walls.
