

AntiMousing is a Real time monitor of mouse movement. The program uses three parameters, the following two are independent, mousespeed is set in milliseconds and percentage. Press the buttons left, right and middle to set the parameters (max click button is 8 as I'll explain later) Tools: I've decided to write this short script with minimal usage of functions and objects. That's why you don't have to install anything other than AntiMousing which is very easy to install if you follow the link in the first post on this page of mine. AntiMousing allows you to record everything related to the mouse movement, this is a log file which will contain all mouse moving related data. Whenever you start/stop recording a log file will be created for that record. The log files are saved in a directory specified in the logfilepath parameter (default: C:\AntiMouse\log) You can also create another logfile for RAGE events such as: RageCount- click and hold down the right button for 4 seconds RageDistance- distance travelled within the 4 seconds RageTime- total time required to perform the RAGE action RagePercent- the percentage of RAGE action within the 4 seconds There are two event functions which are triggered on RAGE events. These are 'Delete rage' and 'RageRemoved' These are the functions that you must specify if you want to record Rage data. Otherwise no data will be stored in the log file. (Note: RAGE event and rage data are two separate things) --+++- AntiMouse: AntiMouse is a very small and simple GUI based mouse movement monitor. The simplest UI possible with its main screen with three buttons to set mousemove speed and percentage and one button to start/stop the monitor. The speed and percentage are usually set to the default value which is 'Auto' (which means the monitor will record your mouse movement speed and percentage by its own) If you use the 'Capture data' function and then come back to AntiMouse's main menu's main screen to cancel it. You can use the function again to capture data. You can save the data in several formats: .log, .txt, .wav, .mp3, .smil. Also you can set the logging file path to a directory and then you don't have to AntiMouse is a program that records the time and distance travelled by the cursor over a mouse. If you mouse-rage, it also records how often you do so as well as how many movements were done in a specific time. As a third option, you can also use the program to make sure that no one will mistake your mouse for another. If you have troubles with people playing pranks on you or your computer, you should certainly download AntiMousing. Mmm..I was using it because it is for my server and was super friendly with nothing to worry about when we were setting it all up. I installed it, and was going through the configuration process to make sure I'm happy, then the tool stopped working. I created a new user and tested it out with that and it worked fine. Not sure what could have caused this. I'm thinking that it could have been either Windows updates or a issue with my hardware drivers for my graphics card.
