Set in a world where some silly biomes came to dominate the planet, dig up the resources of your own planet, and give it all to powerful corporations, this is Sludge Life, a first-person game where you tag the landscape as a really free-roaming and familiar character. Go anywhere, do anything, vandalize everything. Scoring Points: Don't all the scoring methods on this page make this game sound like you have to aim and shoot stuff? That is not the case. Points are earned by doing anything other than sleeping. Some things are easy, others are difficult, but every action you take leads to points. The greater the number of police in the area you are in, the more points you get. Simply get the cops to chase you or chase the cops to you and the more you'll get! Every new item you find or every room you enter will give you 1-2 points, and the more exotic the objects you find, the more points they'll be worth. You will also get points for vandalizing or tagging anything of value on the environment. Don't hesitate to plant yourself in the environment or even on top of other things. You are not limited to touch-based movement. Worthless objects like shopping carts and garage entrances won't score anything, but they can be moved and displayed in your inventory and can be used to store and transport important items. That is why we are calling it graffiti. So you can tag around the environment, but the further you go you'll become more compelled to explore. There are regular scripted events tied to new items, but your strategy for those won't be found in the current manual as they will be revealed as they happen. Fighting Game: The fighting game system is a simple mix of buttons and saves. Hold down the space bar to add character to your attacks, spam the mouse to make them do lots of damage, and click to see the special ability of each character. A life bar in the top-right corner will slowly fill until you die. You can access your inventory by pressing the space bar or by clicking the icon on the left-hand side. Use your inventory items to attack and to dodge. You can also pause the fight or skip it entirely by pressing the escape button. You can choose the difficulty level using the "Sludge Life" button in the title screen. c9d1549cdd
