ClickMarkerFree Activator

ClickMarker is a program that allows you to search the Internet (Google, Yahoo, Ask, MSN) using your mouse, type in a word, or drag and drop a file on it. A quick click and a mouse will be enough to find what you are looking for. By adding these features, the clickmarker free edition is not the same as a regular search tool. It can also be compared to a search engine. What can the clickmarker free edition do? The main feature of the free edition is the ability to point and click. Thanks to this, you will have several options : * be able to search the Internet from any web page. * highlight words on any web page. * drag and drop files on the clickmarker. * add the search engines you use most on your toolbar. * use it in the internet explorer, firefox or any other browser. Features : - Display search results - Add search engines - Support mouse and keyboard (searches all engines) - Display links on a web page - Browse web pages from the command line - Keeps results when you exit the clickmarker. - Search from any page - Display the number of results - If no search engine is installed, use the help to add the Google search engine. - Search from text files - Support bookmarking - Search and highlight from the command line. - Support for online search engines (Google, Yahoo, Bing, Ask,...) - Display and store the websites visited - Run automatically when the browser starts (or on demand) - Display links on any web page (highlight, click to open,...) - Drag and drop files on the clickmarker - View links on any web page (highlight, click to open,...) - View online and offline/read/write bookmarks - Search and display links - Search and highlight in text files - Connect and disconnect from the internet - Search and highlight from the command line - Open a web page and display results - Display result counts - Add to the toolbar. - Browse the web from the command line. - Use the favorites from the command line. - Keep your favorites when you exit the clickmarker. - Display all available commands from the command line. - Add the search engines you use most to your toolbar. - Jump to any web
