Torkham border crossing in Pakistan completely closed after shooting Published duration 21 June 2011 image caption The closure has been in place since Monday Pakistan has shut down its border with Afghanistan because of an ongoing security situation, it has emerged. The Torkham border crossing has been closed after two young men opened fire on an Afghan policeman, injuring him, a statement said. The driver of the vehicle was also injured. Pakistan says the injured Afghan was not working for the international community. The incident occurred when three Afghan nationals were stopped by Pakistani border guards for a routine check, the statement said. "The Afghan nationals started arguing with the border personnel resulting in a fire exchange in which an Afghan police constable was injured," it added. "No shots were fired by Pakistan in response." The Pakistani statement said the injured man had been arrested and his weapon had been seized. "There is no justification for such actions on the part of the Afghan government," the statement said. "Pakistan strongly condemns these actions, which are a matter of deep concern to the Pakistani authorities." The border closure has been in place since Monday, the statement said. Dietary salt restriction improves the endothelial function in glucose-intolerant subjects. Dietary salt restriction is commonly recommended for the treatment of hypertension. The aim of the present study was to investigate the effects of a dietary salt reduction on endothelial function. Twenty-five patients with impaired glucose tolerance were randomly assigned to a dietary salt-restricted group (n = 15) that had their daily salt intake reduced by about 20% for 3 wk or a control group (n = 10) that had their daily salt intake and caloric intake unchanged for 3 wk. Endothelial function was assessed with the measurement of forearm vasomotor responses to intra-arterial
